

This problem requires a simple adhoc approach :

Just need to simulate whats stated in the problem.

Can you traverse through the array maintaining the current subset ? Note that the subset becomes invalid as soon as you encounter a negative number.

Also, note that you do not need to start again on encountering the negative number. You can start from the number next to the negative number.